

HERITAGE APPLE PROBLEM

Frisco Fruit Co. is a small firm that buys fruit from farmers, cooperatives, and food hub wholesalers and sells to grocery stores and other retailers. Frisco is a broker and doesn't own any warehouses or trucks. When it arranges to buy a load of fruit from a farmer, for example, Frisco quickly tries to match the proposed "buy" with a customer or customers. If it is successful in making the sale, Frisco confirms with the farmer and contacts an independent trucking company to do the pickup and delivery. Sometimes Frisco has a standing order from a customer, and other times Frisco contacts prospective customers to see if they are interested in the fruit that has become available.

Adele Rogers was a part-time employee with Frisco. One of the buyers contacted a farmer who had a load of heritage apples ready for market. The buyer called Adele, who was one of the sales staff, to see if there was a customer for these apples. Adele e-mailed Sam Stiglitz, a buyer for Blenheim Grocery, so see if Blenheim would take the apples. They negotiated over price, came to agreement, and Frisco arranged the pickup and delivery of the apples.

Adele left Frisco for another part-time job. Sam canceled the order before the apples were picked up by the trucking company because Blenheim's warehouse had no space for the proposed shipment. Sam's e-mail went to Adele, but Adele was not at her desk because she was no longer employed by Frisco. Shortly thereafter, Sam quit his job and retired for personal reasons.

The trucking company driver picked up the apples. At Blenheim's warehouse, the driver got into an argument with the warehouse manager, who was not expecting the apples and would not accept them. The trucker dumped the apples in the parking lot and left.

These commercial arrangements are covered by arbitration agreements that encourage the use of videotaped depositions rather than live testimony.

Both Adele and Sam have been interviewed by investigators. Portions of these interviews were videotaped.

The exchange of e-mails has been printed out and marked as Exhibit 1.

Adele Rogers <amrogers@gmail.com>

---

Heritage apples

3 messages

---

Adele Rogers <amrogers@gmail.com>

Fri. Aug. 26 at 10:45 am

To: Sam Stiglitz <sam@blenheimgrocery.com>

Sam –

I have a line on approx 25,000 lbs of heritage apples; picking date in approx 1 wk. Orchard used to deal with another broker but reported to be unhappy with their service. We have to commit now both transp and pay. Price to you delivered FOB est. 1.20/lb. Let me know.

Adele

Frisco Fruit Brokers LLC

202 806-5550 (O)

202 772-0978 (M)

---

Sam Stiglitz <sam@blenheimgrocery.com>

Mon. Aug 29 at 9:00 am

To: Adele Rogers <amrogers@gmail.com>

Thx. We are looking for heritage, at your quantity need price point at 1.14 or better. If you can do price, we will take unless I let you know next 1-2 days.

Sam Stiglitz

Blenheim Grocery Inc.

Lakeville Warehouse

Skype sam.stiglitz

Toll free 887-515-0990

---

Adele Rogers <amrogers@gmail.com>

Tues. Aug. 30 at 9:30 am

To: Sam Stiglitz <sam@blenheimgrocery.com>

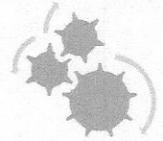

Agreed. 1.14, 25000, del. NMT 3 wks out.

Frisco Fruit Brokers LLC

202 806-5550 (O)

202 772-0978 (M)

DOCTORS OPERATING FOR CHRIST

ANNUAL REPORT YR-1

This report is published as a compilation of the work done by DOC and its volunteer medical missionaries in East Africa. It is distributed to doctors worldwide.

Country	Hours volunteered	Persons assisted
Mozambique	4,235	1,165
Malawi	325	205
Madagascar	467	321
Tanzania	6,012	2,701
Uganda	3,445	No census
Kenya	11,459	4,335
Ethiopia	120	16

This year we especially thank our volunteer plastic surgeons. These highly trained and highly compensated specialists give so generously of their time to transform facial defects, scars, burns, and other horrific effects of wars, disasters, and accidents. They make broken lives whole

We would welcome your contribution to the important work of our organization. We need your help to provide a safe and inviting respite for our volunteers from the streets.

Give now!

Doctors Operating for Christ
87 Medical Way
Nita City, NI.
Tel. 677 834-2210